Reasons For Allowance

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Claims 11,13 and 28 are allowable over the prior art of record because the teachings of the references taken as a whole do not teach or render obvious the combination set forth, including that the connector includes a back up ring (claim 11 and 28) or a compression ring (claim 13).

Church (US 4,696,498) discloses a connection comprising a pin (54) having pin threads, formed externally and extending along a frustoconical surface from a starting point and terminating adjacent the pin end. That external surface has an outside diameter no greater than the outside diameter of a major length of the pin member. The pin includes a pin nose at the free end having an inclined nose section.

A box member (54) includes a threaded surface to be engaged with the pin-threaded surface. This box-threaded surface extends along a frustoconical surface from a starting point and terminating adjacent the box end or in the opposite direction of the pin threaded surface. The box includes an annular inclined shoulder formed internally the box.

An external seal is located between the pin and the box element. It is located adjacent the starting point of the pin threaded surface and the box end.

An internal seal is located adjacent the starting point of the box threaded surface and the pin end. The pin and box threads are confined between the external and internal seals.

However, Church fails to disclose that the external seal comprises an annular elastomeric seal disposed between the pin and the box. Church discloses that the elastomeric seal, the external seal, is located at the middle and at the end of the threaded connection.

Feisthamel (US 1,590,357) teaches that is known in the art to have an external seal that includes an annular elastomeric seal (13) disposed between the pin and the box.

However, the combination fails to disclose the use of a back-up ring or compression ring to give more strength to the threaded connection.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
